The shape began curvilinear and very narrow to allow cross ventilation and to maximize the sun from the southeast side.

To respond to the material limitations of prestressed concrete we wanted to make it more rectilinear while still maintaining the previous concept.